

A DJ, Firas Nassri, is performing at a festival. He is wearing a dark jacket and is focused on his laptop, which displays a DJ software interface. The background features a large, illuminated, geometric structure made of white lines, creating a complex, grid-like pattern. The lighting is warm and red, creating a vibrant atmosphere. The DJ is positioned in the foreground, slightly to the right, looking down at his laptop. The structure behind him is composed of many interconnected lines, forming a series of arches and peaks. The overall scene is dynamic and visually striking.

FIRAS NASSRI

Firas Nassri, based in Montreal, Canada, creates a sound where the textures of Syrian tradition seamlessly merge with the intensity of electronic elements. His music blends ancient melodies with modern rhythms, combining traditional instruments with electronic basslines, including the iconic TB-303, and complex beats. The result is a refined fusion that feels both rooted and innovative, offering listeners a unique sonic experience that is rich in history yet strikingly contemporary.
